Concept Note

The foundational principle of human rights is that all human beings are equal in terms of their rights, dignity, and worth. Yet, we live in a world fraught with social disparities both within and between countries, which have profound implications for the distribution of population, health as well as the unequal enjoyment of economic and social rights as well as human rights in general. We are all committed to fostering an inclusive education, research, and working environment free of bullying and harassment in a democratic society, ensuring that all employees and students are treated with respect, consideration, decency, and dignity at all times. At the 2005 World Summit, all the world's governments reaffirmed "that democracy is a universal value based on the freely expressed will of people to determine their own political, economic, social and cultural systems and their full participation in all aspects of their lives" and stressed "that democracy, development and respect for all human rights and fundamental freedoms are interdependent and mutually reinforcing."

This Seminar invites academicians, scholars, students and practitioners of different parts of India for deliberation and paper presentation on the main theme "Peace, Dignity and Equity for a Healthy World".
